

BIO

Jim Kendzel, MPH, CAE

Jim Kendzel, MPH, CAE currently serves as the Vice President, Advocacy for the American Supply Association (ASA). ASA is the leading trade association in the U.S. representing wholesalers/distributors, manufacturers and manufacture representatives in the plumbing and industrial pipe/valve/fitting markets. Prior to coming to ASA, Jim served as the Executive Director and CEO of the American Society of Plumbing Engineers (ASPE), the Executive Director for the Institute for Credentialing Excellence and the Senior Vice President, Administration at NSF International.

Jim has over 30 years of experience in leadership roles associated with standards development, quality systems management, and product/personnel certification. Jim is active in the industry through his volunteer roles for organizations such as the American National Standards Institute, ASTM International, International Code Council, the International Association of Plumbing & Mechanical Officials, the National Institute of Building Sciences, and the International Organization for Standardization. Jim received his Masters of Public Health from the University of Michigan and is a Certified Association Executive.