ICC Strengthens Training and Education Program with Addition of Tracy Lendi

The International Code Council has announced the addition of Tracy Lendi, Ph.D., to the ICC team as its new Vice President of Training and Education. Formerly serving as the Director of Training and Development at SP Plus Corporation and UL University, Lendi brings over 15 years of leadership experience in overseeing the development, implementation, delivery and evaluation of training programs.

“We are very pleased to have Tracy as part of the ICC team,” said ICC Executive Vice President & Director of Business Development Mark Johnson. “Her past experience in overseeing the quality of both field-based classroom training and online technology-based training will assist ICC in its ongoing efforts to deliver top quality training to its membership in a timely and cost effective manner in new and innovative ways.”

Lendi holds a doctorate in education. She has spent the past 10 years with SP Plus Corporation, implementing the company’s first learning management system along with the introduction of online learning and job specific curricula for all operational job functions within SP Plus Corporation. During her time there, she also launched situational-based learning programs that utilized a blended approach to give individuals the skills required to be successful and presenting them in a way that was engaging, memorable and realistic to the job function. Prior to working at SP Plus Corporation, Lendi’s employment history included working in training and development for UL University.

In addition to Lendi joining the ICC team, ICC is also pleased to announce that Doug Thornburg, Vice President of Education and Certification, will assume an expanded role as ICC’s Vice President and Technical Director of Products and Services.

“Tracy’s addition to our team will help us to effectively continue implementation of the ICC education strategy. I am looking forward to working with her to best serve our members,” Thornburg said.
