A community activist for public health and safety, Lee has served as a Senior Plumbing Training Officer for the Los Angeles Department of Building and Safety, instructing inspectors, engineers, and support staff. His career began as a second generation plumber, working for his father at Clifton Plumbing Inc. in Tampa, Florida and then entering the United Association Apprentice Program. He holds an L.A. Lee retired from the City of Los Angeles in 2007 at the position of Principle Inspector with 25 years of service.
